OGUNTE WOMEN'S SOCIAL LEADERSHIP AWARDS 2010

Dr Samantha Collins, from Aspire, finalist of Oguntê Women's Social Leadership Awards 2010.

NEWS RELEASE

London, United Kingdom 27-04-2010

Dr Samantha Collins, from Aspire, is among the finalists nominated for the Women's Social Leadership Awards 2010 (www.ogunte.com).

Set up in 2007, the awards recognise women in the UK and abroad, influential leaders, connectors, campaigners and social entrepreneurs, who influence sustainable development, offer innovative and sustainable solutions to pressing social issues and can evidence their social impact.

The awards aim to encourage and acknowledge extraordinary vision, responsible business and campaigning practices, as well as social responsibility.

Organised by Oguntê Ltd, a women-focused Social Innovations and Leadership Development company, the winners will be announced during an event at The RSA in London, on June 8th 2010, from 6pm.

This event is an Oguntê, RSA and V Capital partnership.

"At Oguntê we are passionate about supporting, promoting and connecting women of courage, who bring about genuine innovative ideas and actions to solve social problems. We encourage them to come forward and demonstrate how they create a positive social impact and how they make the world a fairer place.

These women, recognised in our yearly Social Leadership Awards, prove that with generosity, focus, confidence and robust networks, you can achieve great and measurable social change."

Servane Mouazan, CEO Oguntê Ltd.
